PRESIDENT

Lynne E. DiStasio '74 graduated from Wilson with a bachelor's degree in economics. She went on to Emory University School of Law in Atlanta, Ga., and practiced law in New York. She worked at MetLife for 32 years, mostly as an attorney, but also as vice president of employee relations and chief diversity officer for the company before she retired. DiStasio serves as the current President of AAWC and is a former Alumnae Trustee.

In her own words: "Everyone who graduates from Wilson takes a piece of the place with them in their hearts when they leave! I contribute in all the ways that I can, especially sharing the experiences I've gained in my life and career. Each and every one of us can make a huge difference, and Wilson needs us all, now more than ever, as it charts a course through these very challenging times."

SECRETARY

Carole Stoehr Ashbridge '70 graduated from Wilson with a bachelor's degree in Latin. She received her Master of Library Science from the University of Pittsburgh. After a rewarding 38-year career as a school library media specialist, she is now retired and resides in Mars, Pa. She continues to work with her own genealogy business, Connections Abound. Ashbridge was appointed to fulfill the past year as Secretary of AAWC and also serves as her class correspondent.

In her own words: "I have served on the AAWC Board since 2015. It has been one of the most rewarding experiences in my life, and I wish to continue to do so. I welcome the opportunity to work toward strengthening the relationships between the College, her heritage, and the alums of the past and future."

DIRECTORS

Cody Dunlap '18 is completing his first term on the AAWC Board. He graduated from Wilson with a bachelor's degree in financial mathematics and economics. A resident of Orlando, Fla., Dunlap is employed as an assistant store leader at GameStop.

In his own words: "How can I help make a difference by serving my alma mater? I think my contribution could be summed up best with the following quote. 'Never accept the world as it appears to be. Dare to see it for what it could be.' – Dr. Harold Winston."

Kim Marie Burroughs-Walker '88

graduated from Wilson with a bachelor's degree in pre-med chemistry. A resident of Glen Burnie, Md., she is employed as a clinical operations manager for Syneos Health. Previously she worked as clinical operations lead for Syneos Health.

In her own words: "I believe that I can help give back to my alma mater with more than just with money. I can give my time to help support our next generation. Our time and money can be used to grow the College with scholarships, new facilities, upgrades to existing facilities, and anything that makes the College a better place for the students."

Patricia W. Bennett '68 graduated from Wilson with a bachelor's degree in English and went on to earn a master's degree in journalism from Quinnipiac University in Hamden, Conn. She has taught American media history as an adjunct professor at Quinnipiac and has worked as a reporter, columnist, and editor in the New England newspaper and magazine markets. Although retired, she continues to work as a self-employed editor and resides in Bryn Mawr, Pa.

In her own words: "I have served 2010-2013 AAWC Director; 2013-2016 Alumnae Trustee; 2016-2019 AAWC Director, together with committee chairs held. I know Wilson workings; I know the issues she faces, and I'm ready to apply that experience to see the College and the AAWC secure and flourishing for the next 150 years."

Leah Good '06 graduated from Wilson with a bachelor's degree in equine facilitated therapeutics. She received her master's in special education from Shippensburg University. A resident of Carlisle, Pa., she is currently employed as a special education teacher in the Chambersburg Area School District. Leah completed a term on the AAWC Nominating Committee and serves as the current chair.

In her own words: "Through my involvement, I can maintain contact with fellow alums and ensure that we stay connected to our alma mater. I believe in the importance of connections and maintaining relationships through shared experiences, as well as connecting with people from across generations. I believe that through serving on the AAWC Board, I can support the heritage of Wilson College."
